Character Sketch

Notes

James has lived a hard life. A hard life, and a bad life. He's done things he doesn't like to think about, let alone talk about. He took the reunion with his friends as an opportunity to finally give going straight a try. Then this whole mess with the Artist happened. He's still trying to walk the straight and narrow, but it's so much damned easier just to pick up a gun and start blasting away...besides, he's found himself sticking to Emilie like glue all over again, just like in the old days, and it's easier to protect her if he's got access to lethal force...
